A DISPATCH reporter investigated the matter last night and found that there was no danger of the New York trouble being repeated in this city. In conversation with a number of prominent persons it was found that the defective electric lighting of New York was supposed to be due to the action of the city authorities in allowing too many companies to come into the city. There are about 10 or 12 companies competing for business in the town. In making estimmates and bidding for work they have fig-

Another Magnificent Floral Display for the Remaining Days.

THE MUSICAL FEATURES PROVIDED

But four days remain of the Exposition of 1889. Those four days, however, will be fraught with interest to the public as well as profit to the management. The attendance is growing from day to day. That of Monday, despite the inclemency of the weather, was very large. It is anticipated that the superlative will be necessary to express the attendance of to-day and the remainder of the season.

Every day from now on until the close will be People's Day. More excursions have been scheduled from out of town, and every railroad centering here will have its hands full of Exposition business, and in order that there may be no diminution of interest the management has arranged for a special floral display to begin at once, as well as special musical features by the Thirty and the Regiment Read.

THE BARNES SAFE.

Latest Testimony of Its Worth.

THE EXHIBIT IN THE EXPOSITION.

At the big fire which consumed the works of "The Oliver Iron and Steel Company" on the Southside, fresh evidence of the superiority of the Barnes safe was obtained. From a communication it was learned that this company had their books deposited in vaults with three fireproaf doors made by the Barnes Safe and Lock Company. Also one large safe with books, papers of the Monongahela Natural Gas Company. The fire was a dangerous one, and the entire fire department was summoned to subdue it. On the next day the vaults were opened, and their contents found in good condition. The safe fell from the second floor; was in the ruins two days. On October 10 it was recovered, and when opened the books and papers were found infact. The safe was red hot when found. The company sent an order in this wise to Barnes: "Send us over at red bot when found. The company sent an order in this wise to Barnes: "Send us over at once five of your largest safes, to be used until the structure is rebuilt, when we will get more vault doors and safes from you. Feeling deeply indebted to you for this perfect protection and safety of our books and papers, we remain, yours truly, etc."

This is but one in hundreds of instances on record where the Barnes Safes have merited the proud distinction of saving property contained within their indestructible walls.

Parties in need of the proof safes should examine the elegant collection at the exhibit found on main aisle at entrance of Mechanical Hall. These safes are as perfect in construction asseience and good workmanship can make them. They are undoubtedly the leading safes of the country, and are found in every State of the Union.
